Pitcher Tom Hughes, of the Nationals met with a painful accident last night, one likely to keep him out of the game nail turned black and the finger began to swell with inflammation. Hughes lost no time in drilling a hole through the nail in order to release the blood. Just what effect this injury will have on his pitching cannot be determined until today, as it was not known last night what the inflammation would amount to.

The lanky twirler was on his way for a good-night visit to Walter Johnson when the accident happened.

Whether or not Hal Chase's case of smallpox will prevent the opening of the American League season against New York here next Monday will be definitely determined to-night.

Surg. Gen. Walter Wyman, of the Marine Hospital Service, dispatched Assistant Goldberg to Lynchburg, Va., last night, with instructions to look over the New York Americans and ascertain if there be any danger in permitting them to come to Washington. Inspector Goldberg's report will settle the issue, and this report is expected to-night or Fri-
